Rice Center for Transforming Data to Knowledge (D2K Lab)
Founder
Founder & Faculty Director

2018 - present
2018 - 2022

The Rice D2K Lab is a campus hub for innovative and interdisciplinary data science education. We provide students with engagement, enrichment, and experiential learning opportunities by connecting students with real-world data science challenges from companies, community organizations and researchers.

Highlights:

- Raised over $5M to establish and support the D2K Lab and Rice data science education.
- Developed and established an innovative capstone program where over 80 interdisciplinary student teams have used their data science and machine learning skills to make a real-world impact.
- Led efforts to revise and improve the Data Science Minor curriculum to promote accessibility and flexibility, changes which are expected to lead to growth in the minor and increased diversity in data science.
- Partnered with the Department of Computer Science and the Jones School of Business to launch the new Master of Data Science degree with on-campus and online options.
- Hired several great teaching-track faculty and worked with them to develop five new courses such as Introduction to Data Science, an accessible and project-based gateway into data science and machine learning.
- Worked with departments across campus to incorporate D2K courses as an elective or requirement in 12 different degree programs.
- Built and fostered data science partnerships with over 30 companies, over 20 community or government partners, and 5 Texas Medical Center partners.
- Supported student groups and clubs in data science and machine learning to run popular programs and events like the recent Rice Datathon which attracted over 450 students and awarded over $15,000 in prizes.
- Impacted over 1000 Rice students a year through D2K courses, programs and events.
